What Bakelite Is

Bakelite is a new substance, recently produced as a result of scientific experiment and research, which resembles clear, transparent amber so closely that only an expert can detect the difference. As soon as this substance came to our notice we saw that it was just what we needed to show clearly and conclusively the wonderful workings of capillary attraction as utilized by the Parker Lucky Curve, and we arranged to have a few pens made up with Bakelite barrels for demonstrating.

How We Came to Make Parker Fountain Pens with Bakelite Barrels.

At first we had no thought of making any use of Bakelite for commercial purposes further than the manufacture of a limited supply of transparent barreled pens for our own salesmen to carry. Presently, however, dealers to whom our salesmen showed their demonstrating pens began to ask for the same kind of pen with which to convince their own trade of the perfect cleanliness produced in Parker Pens by the Lucky Curve. When we supplied these and the dealers showed them to their customers, many of these were attracted by the novelty, and by the convenience of being able at all times to see just how much ink there was in the barrel, and wished to purchase them for their own personal use. The demand from this source became so great and so insistent that a few months ago we decided to manufacture a few of our regular styles of Parker Pens with Bakelite barrels, and offer them for general sale along with the balance of the Parker Pen line. The call for these pens has been so great wherever they have been shown that we feel that, although we stumbled upon it almost by accident, the Bakelite barrel is going to be one of the most popular innovations ever made in the fountain pen business.

We are now making the Transparent Bakelite Fountain Pen in both standard and self-filling types, in four styles (numbers 20, 23, 24 and 25) as shown on next page.

There is no difference whatever between the transparent Bakelite Fountain Pen and the standard one, the same type and style, except in the barrel. In the Bakelite Pen this new amberlike substance is used in place of the hard rubber regular employed for making the barrel. The Bakelite Pen is just as efficient, just as convenient, just as cleanly, and in addition has the features of novelty and convenience imparted by the clear amber transparency of this new material. The cost of the Bakelite Pens is slightly greater than that of the same pens with hard rubber barrel, since Bakelite is more expensive and more difficult to manufacture.

No. 20—Standard or Self-Filling (regular price with rubber barrel $2.50) with transparent Bakelite Barrel $3.50. With Level Lock Clip 25c extra

No. 23—Standard or Self-Filling (regular price with rubber barrel $4.00) with transparent Bakelite barrel $5.00. With Level Lock Clip 25c extra

No. 24—Standard or Self-Filling (regular price with rubber barrel $4.00) with transparent Bakelite barrel $5.00. With Level Lock Clip 25c extra

No. 25—Standard or Self-Filling (regular price with rubber barrel $5.00) with transparent Bakelite barrel $6.00. With Level Lock Clip 25c extra

PARKER PEN CO., Geo. S. Parker, President, Janesville, Wisconsin

The perfect transparency of the Bakelite barrel enables you to see the inner workings of the Lucky Curve in the Standard Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen. There is also positive advantage in being able to see instantly just how much ink there is in the barrel of your pen and to know when it needs refilling without waiting until it actually runs dry.

The Workings of the Self-Filler Can Be Seen Through The Bakelite Barrel.

The diaphragm resumes the position as shown in cut No. 1, and the rubber sac has drunk itself full of ink. It is the most simple—the most perfect by far, of all types of self-filling pens.

The illustrations of Parker Self-Filling Bakelite Pens on this page show how the transparent barrel reveals the operation of the self-filling mechanism. You will find it interesting to watch the wonderful simplicity and rapidity with which this smooth-barreled pen fills itself when you press the button.

Introduction

This Booklet is our representative and bears our personal message to you regarding the excellent constructive features and designs of the Parker  Fountain Pen, the most reliable, convenient, cleanest and smoothest writing pen in the world. They who wish to conserve their energies and get the most sun-shine out of this brief life are quick to take advantage of every means to make work less arduous. Modern intelligence is relegating the cheap and inferior leaky fountain pen and the foul corroding steel pen and its sloppy ink bottle to the quill feather past. The ~~expensive~~ the Anti-Break Cap and Spearhead Ink Controller mean perfection in operation, and makes the Parker Pen what it is—a pen of honor guaranteed by its maker.

Make This Test Yourself and Prove That It Won't Leak

heard for years about the ~~secret~~ of the Parker Fountain Pen but didn't know what it was, or what it does.

And many people, even dealers, didn't believe that the ~~secret~~ really does do any thing. They just thought it was some ad.

The Clean Pen—The Result of the Parker Lucky Curve

Unscrew any Parker Fountain Pen; fill the feed tube with ink; touch the ~~end~~ to the barrel wall, as in this picture, and watch the ink scoot down.

Thus prove to yourself that the Parker Pen will not leak and smear your fingers.

Many people, even some dealers, have

Inky Fingers—The result of the common straight feed interior kind vertising talk, and that, in reality, it didn't amount to anything.

If you will make the test shown at the left, you can see for yourself just how the ~~end~~ sucks the ink down out of the feed channel, the moment you put the pen in your pocket, point up.

WHY the Parker "Lucky Curve" Stops Leaking

WHY the Parker Spearhead Stops Blotting

WHY the New Parker Disappearing Clip Stops Losing

In order that you may understand why the Parker doesn't leak, you must know why fountain pens generally do leak, so we will tell you first why a fountain pen leaks. When you set a fountain pen in your vest pocket, point up, most of the ink runs down into the reservoir, but not all of it. Some always hangs up in the feed channel. Between these two inks is always a space full of air. See X-ray photograph of a Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen, also X-ray photograph of a common type fountain pen, shown herewith.

Now the body is 98 degrees hot. This is considerable heat. It's as hot as the hottest summer day in July.

Those 98 degrees heat of the body heat up the contents of the vest pocket pretty hot, and that heating up of the vest pocket heats up the air in the air space in your fountain pen.

When the air thus gets heated, it expands, and when it thus expands it's got to get somewhere. It can't stay in. It can't stay in any more than steam can stay in a cylinder, which contains two holes for it to get out.

Now when that expanding takes place, it expands against the line of least resistance, which is up through the feed channel and out through the pen point.

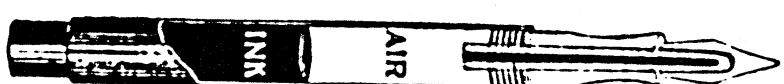

As it expands it makes a plunge for the only method of escape, viz., the feed channel. Instead of entering the channel in little minute bubbles, by some peculiar law of physics it enters the feed channel in elongated bubbles, completely filling the ink channel. As the pressure behind increases this elongated air bubble gradually creeps upward in the feed channel pushing all the ink on top of it upward until it fills the space around the nozzle, full of ink, and where it is apt to be jarred or spilled over the end of the nozzle where the writer finds it when he takes the cap off his fountain pen, and wonders what made his pen leak so badly.

Of course, you see now, why you get smeared when you take off your cap to write.

Now, let us tell you why the Parker doesn't leak.

The Parker feed channel isn't straight like the other. It's crooked—curved at the lower end, as per the X-ray photograph herewith. It curves over and touches the wall of the barrel.

That magic touch is the secret—the open secret of Parker Pen success. The moist wall of the barrel has so great an attraction for the ink in the feed tube that instantly a tiny flood rushes downward—when the pen is uplifted—and joins the store in the reservoir beneath.

The Geo. S. Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen

Spearhead
Ink Controller Prevents Blots

What makes the Lucky Curve and the Lucky Touch suck the ink down? Capillary Attraction, that wizardly force that makes a lump of sugar suck coffee or a sponge suck water, or a blotter suck ink, or a lamp wick suck oil.

The Parker Lucky Curve is the only invention that has ever been contrived and patented that really stops leaking and smearing your fingers. All sorts of contrivances such as plugs, and things of that sort, have been used, but so powerful is the air when it gets warm and begins to expand, that it will drive the ink out around plugs and pistons and around everything. There's only one way to make a pen stop leaking and that one way is to remove the cause. It's just like curing a man of sickness. You can't Parker cure him; you've got to remove the cause. COMMON

Lucky Curve
Feed Tube

All fountain pens seek to cure leaking Type Feed Tube rather than to remove the cause, and that is why they fail to stop leaking and sweating and smearing of fingers. Please remember it distinctly, that the Parker is the only pen that removes the cause of leaking and smearing, and, therefore, is the only pen that doesn't leak and smear. Now, about that Spearhead Ink Controller which holds up blots.

That is one of the most ingenious things that has ever been contrived by physics.

The Spearhead Ink Controller is a little device to prevent ink from feeding too fast or dropping off the pen point should more ink be forced out of the reservoir by accident or otherwise, as for instance a sudden jar.

The Controller consists of little notches or recesses cut in the side of the feeder. By one of the most peculiar and strangest laws of physics it is found that when ink which had been forced out of the fountain as above indicated and which would ordinarily drop off on the paper, it will be taken up by this little Controller and deposited in the first set of notches and held there as tenaciously off on the paper, it will be taken up by this little Controller and deposited in the first set of notches and held there as tenaciously as though it was grasped by two tiny little hands.

Should still more ink be forced out, this strange law of physics will repeat the performance and fill the next two recesses or notches above and so on until the complete under side of the pen is loaded with ink held there by this weird and wizardlike force.

The Geo. S. Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen

This phantom cut shows the simple principle of construction that is used for the Parker Jack Knife Safety Pen.

The tapering inner cap fits perfectly and forms an ink tight compartment for the gold pen. No valves or other complicated mechanism to get out of order.

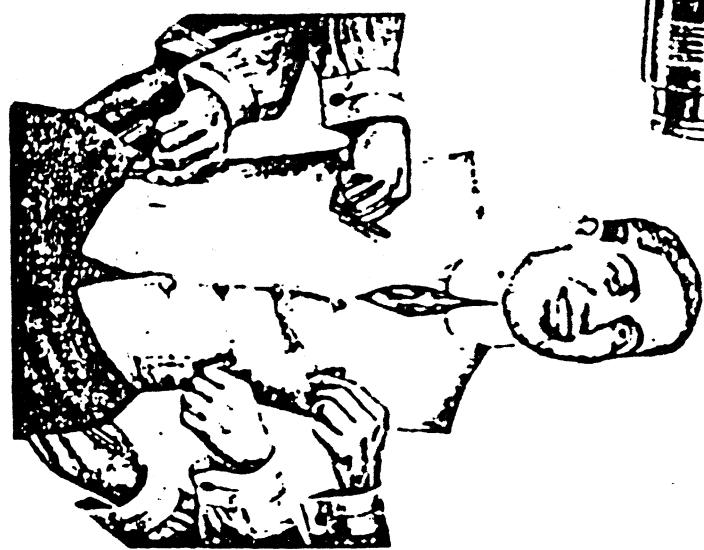

The Parker Lucky Curve Jack Knife Pen is the only fountain pen designed that can be carried with absolute safety in any pocket or in any position, and it won't leak.

The Parker Jack Knife Pen has two caps, the regular or outer cap which screws on over the nozzle and the inner or safety cap which fits inside the regular cap (see sectional cut above). The gold pen is always encased in an air tight and ink tight compartment.

Wherever you take the Parker Jack Knife Pen out of your pocket, no matter if you have been carrying it upside down, simply hold it with the cap upright and unscrew it and if there is any ink in the cap, it will be quickly pulled back into the barrel of the pen by the magic force of capillary attraction. The Lucky Curve does that.

The Parker Jack Knife Pen wouldn't be such a wonderful invention unless it had the additional feature of the Lucky Curve so the ink will always be drained back where it belongs down in the barrel of the pen.

The accompanying cut shows just how convenient the Jack Knife Pen is. You do not have to think to put in into one particular pocket right side up with care, but you simply without thought or danger of leaking, shove it into any pocket you want and always find it showing how convenient the Jack Knife is ready for instant use and ink where needed but never where it will soil your fingers.

Parker Jack Knife Pen Always Writes Like a Fresh Dipped Pen

This phantom cut shows the Safety Cap on the Jack Knife Pen which not only prevents the pen from leaking but also being absolutely air tight keeps the point of the pen perfectly moist at all times and consequently it is always ready for instant writing.

The cuts to the right show how the Jack Knife Pen can be handled with white kid gloves or carried in a lady's purse or bag and never leak.

When fitted with the screw ring, it can be attached on the end of the watch chain and either allowed to hang as an ornament or carried in the opposite vest pocket (see page 33 describing line of Jack Knife Pens fitted with screw ring for this purpose).

We are also now manufacturing the Jack Knife Pen in full length patterns as so many people want a long pen that can be thrown into their grip or traveling case in any position with perfect safety.

Level Lock Clips

Parker Level Lock Clip "The Clip That Disappears"

New Parker Level Lock Disappearing Clip. There is nothing like it in the entire world. It is an entirely new departure in fountain pen clips.

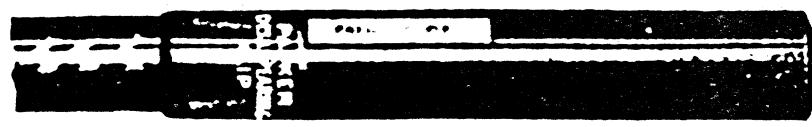

Instead of being riveted or clasping on the outside of the cap, making this end of the fountain look like an eyesore, it is built on entirely different and distinct lines. Like a good little servant, it is in evidence only when wanted. If when not wanted it disappears to the level of the cap.

The clip is visible above the surface of the cap only when the pen is ready to go into the pocket. Then it appears above the surface and grips the lapel of the pocket as shown in the cut. As soon as the cap is taken from the pen point end, the clip immediately disappears to the level of the surface of the cap, in which position it looks like a neat little nickel name plate—in fact the open space is usually left for the engraving of the owner's name.

It grips the pocket and holds but does not tear it. Two little holes are cut into the cap and the clip is held in place by the bridge formed between the holes and also a small brass collar in the upper end of the cap.

Altogether it is the one clip that fills the idea of what a clip should be. Cannot be sold separate from the cap owing to the fact each Level-Lock must be fitted to the cap. The price is only 25c in addition to the price of the pen.

The Parker Anti-Break Cap

This Cap is so designed that the strain can never come at the edge which is naturally the weakest part of the rubber. It is just another feature which shows how scientifically constructed the Parker Pen really is.

What You Have a Right to Expect of a Fountain Pen

When you purchase a Parker Pen you will buy not merely a fountain pen composed of gold, rubber and iridium. In addition to this you buy a pen made by men who know how, who love their work and who endeavor to make each pen just as satisfactory as they would do if it were for their individual uses.

When you buy a fountain pen you are entitled to something more than a fountain pen and that which is of more importance than all else, viz., satisfaction.

The purchase of a fountain pen is something like the purchase of a suit of clothes. You can purchase a suit of shoddy goods for half or a third of what you will pay for a good, all wool, tailor-made suit. When it is new, to an inexperienced buyer the cheap suit looks nearly as good as the better one, but after a little wear it is demonstrated that the cheap suit is shoddy and unsatisfactory.

So it is with a shoddy fountain pen. As a matter of fact, the "cheap" pen is dear at any price. They are the "shoddy" of the fountain pen business. These wear like shoddy clothes. Comparatively few fountain pen buyers will knowingly buy a shoddy fountain pen.

There is scarcely an article that can be purchased where the last 50c, $1.00 or even $2.00, as the case may be, added to the price that will return such satisfactory results as in a fountain pen. Indeed it is this portion of the price of a fountain pen that gives to the owner just the "right feel," the right touch, or in other words a pen that will be the source of increased pleasure as the years of use roll by. If your dealer hasn't Parker Fountain Pens and won't put them in stock, or won't get an assortment for you to select from, you can select from this catalogue, and we will ship you direct at the prices named and prepay transportation charges.

Look on these pages—with full confidence that each statement made is the conservative truth. No exaggerations, no misstatements are tolerated by the manufacturers of the Lucky Curve and you will be more than satisfied with every single pen ordered from its pages. Hundreds of thousands throughout the world have used the Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen with continuing satisfaction. Join them—and bless the Lucky Curve which has abolished inky fingers.

The New Parker Self Filler

Nothing like it in the Whole World—"Press the Button and it Fills Itself!"

For several years we have manufactured a self-filling pen which had a very large valve. This old-style pen contained many of the objectionable features which are found in practically every self-filling pen made up to date, that is it had the humps and bumps on the outside of the barrel for the purpose of operating the self-filling device. The new Parker Self Filler is different—it has all the appearances of the regular style pen—all the humps and bumps have been omitted—there is nothing to mar its beauty or weaken the strength of the holder. The cut on the opposite page shows the pen complete which looks like any other pen. It also shows the little "blind" cap removed, revealing a little button projecting from the end of the barrel.

The accompanying illustrations show the simplicity of filling this style of pen which is as follows: A slight turn removes the "blind" cap—press the button—insert the nozzle in the ink—release the button and it instantly fills itself. The entire operation requires three to six seconds. We confidently feel that the new Parker Self-Filler is the "last word" in Self-Filling Pens. It is sold with the absolute guarantee of giving entire satisfaction and every dealer is authorized to offer you this guarantee.

The new Parker Self-Filler will be made for the present in the plain style pens, selling at \$2.50, \$3.00, \$4.00 and \$5.00. These correspond to our regular pens in the sizes and numbers as follows: No. 20, No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$ , No. 23, No. 23 $\frac{1}{4}$ , No. 24, No. 24 $\frac{1}{2}$  and No. 25. See pages 14, 15 and 16 for prices and illustrations.

—THEN Release the Button and it Fills Instantly

This fountain is protected by broad patents and any infringers will be vigorously prosecuted.

As to the number of words any of the above pens will write with one filling, that depends upon entirely whether it is fitted with a coarse or a fine point. The $2.50 size will hold upwards of thirty drops of ink and the larger sizes even a greater quantity.

The new Parker Self-Filler can be furnished in many styles of mounted pens—prices the same as regular pens in this catalog. At present we can only furnish these to special order.

A Perfect Writer

For The Bill Clerk

FREQUENT copying of figures by writing increases in proportion the chance of mistakes. If instead of rewriting written articles, a duplicate copy were made while the original was being written, the liability of error would be decreased very much and much time saved by doing two jobs in the time formerly required for one.

Comparatively few people know the many uses to which a Fountain Pen can be put. Take, for instance, the Manifold Pen. Any firm doing either a wholesale or retail business would save one-half the expense of a bill-clerk by keeping up with the times and using a Parker Manifold Pen. With it, the original bill is made and at the same time, by having a sheet of especially prepared paper, known as pen carbon, placed beneath and over another blank bill, an exact duplicate of the original is made. These duplicates can then be placed in a binder, used as a journal or order book, from which postings to the ledger can be made.

PHYSICIANS use them for making original copy of prescriptions for patients, and retaining duplicates for files for future reference.

BUSINESS MEN use them in making copies of correspondence. Does away with letter press. No business man should ever write a business letter or order without preserving a duplicate copy for future reference, which is easily and quickly done when the original is being made.

In ordering Manifold Pens, always specially state Manifold Pen. They are furnished in Nos. 20, 23, 24 and 25. At same price as charged for regular pens.

The Stenographer

DRAWING the most exacting use to which a Fountain Pen can be put is that of writing shorthand, when in the hands of a court reporter. Prof. Isaac S. Dement, who is said to be one of the world's greatest shorthand writers, says that a pen that will write shorthand successfully will stand anything. In fact, it might be interesting to read his entire letter.

We now make and have for years, pens especially designed and ground to the requirements of shorthand writers. Many of the most famous court reporters and professional experts in shorthand, in all parts of the country, will be found equipped with a Parker Lucky Curve. No greater mistake is made than to equip the student, just starting in upon a course of shorthand with a make-shift pen, simply because it is cheap. The equipment of the student is the very least of the necessary expenses. Too frequently, when failure has resulted, the direct cause can be traced back to the false economy of inferior equipment. Pens especially ground and fitted for shorthand are furnished in Nos. 20, 23, 24 and larger sizes.

Geo. S. PARKER PEN CO., JACKSVILLE, WIS., CHICAGO, ILL.
GENTLEMEN.—You have the only Fountain Pen that will stand high-speed work in shorthand, and a pen that will stand anything. I have used one of your pens for a long time, and it has never failed to respond. I have tried every fountain pen that has come to my notice. In the hope of finding one upon which I could rely in taking rapid shorthand notes, and yours is the only one that is absolutely reliable. Your Lucky Curve was an inspiration. Very truly yours,

Its Usefulness

The Business Man

HERE is probably no one more appreciative of a really good Fountain Pen than the business man. These captains of industry, whose time is valuable, want a pen for USE. It must be ready and prompt and render good service. The business men of the country who use Parker Pens can be numbered by the hundreds of thousands. Not to use a Parker Pen would be like a city merchant trying to light his store with tallow candles.

PARKER PEN CO., JASSEVILLE, WIS.

GENTLEMEN.—A very singular coincidence took place this evening at the above hotel. When writing our orders, one mentioned the fact that he used the best fountain pen made, upon which both disagreed, saying that theirs was the best. But, upon investigation, we find each and all to be the famous and old reliable Lucky Curve to all traveling men and to the general public. Signed by

Pens For Bookkeepers

BOOKKEEPERS as a rule use a very fine pointed pen for their work, such as a Spencerian or a Gillott. Using a pen of the dip variety all day long adds to the fatigue of the bookkeeper about 30 per cent. Just think of it, wasting 30 per cent of one's energies, by not having such a labor saving, time saving device as a Parker  Fountain Pen, made especially for bookkeepers' work. We make them as fine as any Spencerian or Gillott pen made, when so ordered. We have relieved thousands of bookkeepers of the drudgery connected with their work. See the new pen just gotten out for bookkeepers on page 36.

PARKER PEN CO., JASSEVILLE, WIS.

GENTLEMEN.—I have purchased one of your No. 20 Fountain Pens and am very much pleased with it. Have used it for three days past, in books, and the pen has not lost one drop of ink to blot the paper. I have tried a number of fountain pens but always sent them back, but the Lucky Curve is all O. K.

Yours truly,

The Parker Jointless Fountain Pen

Wherein is the Parker Jointless Fountain different from the regular? It has no screw section! The pen and feeder are fitted into a little tubular rubber collar which holds them securely in place. This little collar has leading out from it a projecting finger or stop. In order to fill the barrel you simply grasp the back of the pen and feeder underneath the pen, pull out. To replace simply put again in the barrel and push back until the little finger or stop slips into the little groove that is cut clear around the inside of the barrel. (See picture showing cutaway section disclosing how it operates.) The advantages of a pen of this nature are obvious—its extreme simplicity—promptness of flow, etc.

Parker Jack-Knife Safety Fountain Pens

The phenomenal record for sales which our Jack-Knife Safety Fountain Pen has enjoyed ever since its introduction a comparatively short time ago shows that it fills a long felt need. This is the first real Safety Pen that is practical and entirely without valves, pistons or other complicated mechanism. It may be carried flat in the vest or coat pocket like a short lead pencil and without danger of breaking or losing. The Jack-Knife Pen is well adapted for ladies use since it may be dropped into a suit case or traveling bag with no risk to the other contents. It is doubly convenient when traveling as it can be tossed into a suit case or traveling bag with perfect safety.

The Jack-Knife Safety Pen has two caps, the regular or outer cap which screws off over the nozzle and the inner or safety cap which fits inside the regular cap. When the outer cap has been properly screwed down after the writer is through using the pen, the threaded end of the safety cap should be given a little turn, sufficiently hard to make a close contact between the end of the nozzle and the end of the inside safety cap. The gold pen then fits in an ink tight compartment. Ave ink that may come into this safety cap is drained back into the barrel when the pen is held point upward and the outer cap removed for writing.

No. 20 Jack Knife Safety. Price $2.50. Price with Gold Filled Ring $2.75
This is our regular size No. 20 Jack Knife Safety. No other pen has ever equalled in so short a time the sales reached by this pen. No. 20 1/2

No. 23 1/2 Jack Knife Safety. Price $3.00. Price with Gold Filled Ring $3.25

This shows the chased holder which makes a very neat and pleasing effect. Fitted with No. 23 gold pen. A good seller. No. 23 Jack Knife, price $3.00. One size larger than the No. 20 Jack Knife.

No. 25 Jack Knife Safety. Price $5.00. Price with Gold Filled Ring $5.25

This is the largest Safety we make at present, except on special orders. A magnificent pen. Fitted with gold pen No. 5. Cut is slightly reduced. No. 25 1/2 Jack Knife, same size and price as No. 25 Jack Knife but with fancy chased barrel and cap.

See pages 6 and 7 for illustrations showing how the Jack Knife may be carried without danger of leaking.

The Parker Jack-Knife Safety—Long Barrel

This is the latest thing we have added to our line. Here is a Safety Pen to carry in the regular way—right side up. If you forget to do it, it's all right, for this is what the safety attachment is for—to insure against accidents. It is certainly a popular pen as it has already become greatly in demand. Naturally on account of its size, its ink capacity is much greater than the baby size. Strange to say even popular as the little Jack Knife Safety is, its larger brother seems destined to be even a greater seller.

Parker Jack-Knife Pens With Rings

These are something that are very popular. The end of safety cap is fitted with a little ring to which a chain may be attached. Very neat and attractive and a big seller. These little rings add  $\frac{1}{2}$  to the price of the pen and can be attached to any of the plain Jack Knife pens except baby sizes. Our fancy mounted Jack Knife pens have these rings attached and are included in the price of the pen.

No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$  S. R. Jack Knife Safety. Regular Length. Price \$2.75 including Ring

No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$  S. R. Jack Knife Safety. Long Barrel. Price \$2.75 including Ring

The Pen of All Pens

It's the magnificent $250.00 Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen. Just think, a fountain pen for $250.00.

Nothing of the kind has ever approached the splendor and artistic achievement found in this pen. It is made of solid gold and studded with precious gems. In the cap is set a large diamond of dazzling brilliancy which scintillates in its liquid like beauty. The smaller stones, consisting of diamonds, rubies, etc., are so utilized as to fit in perfectly with the raised figures in the design. These goods are all hand made, no two are exactly alike and the making is the handwork of the most skilled artisans. A natural query: Do we expect to sell them? Most assuredly we do and are.

It is not that this $250.00 diamond set pen will write any better than our $2.50 pen for it will rot. But then the $2.50 pen is plain—without ornate settings or mountings. There are many wealthy people who will not hesitate to pay $250.00 for a fountain pen if it just struck their fancy.

And besides what more appropriate presentation gift could be selected for a bride, some honored member of an organization, a statesman or person of exalted rank.

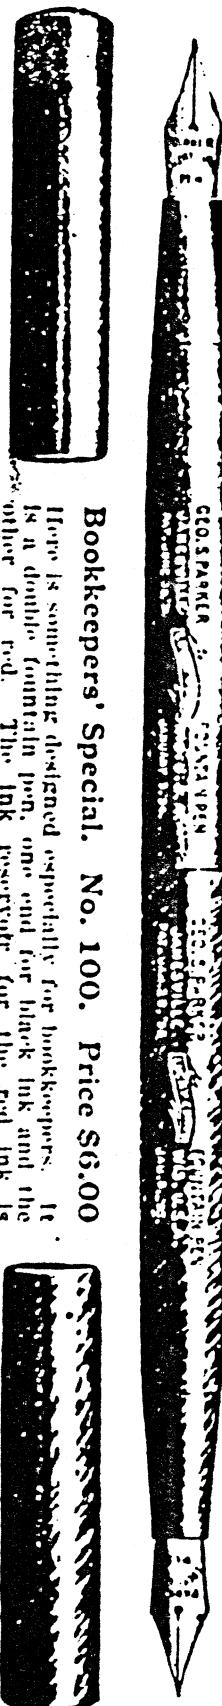

Only last year we made to special order a costly, bejeweled pen for the King of Wurtenburg. The little city of Waukegan, Ill., purchased one of our expensive made to order pens for a gift to the Hon. Wm. J. Bryan. Several of these beautiful pens are displayed for sale at our New York Retail Store, Woolworth Building, Ground Floor, Broadway, and have been the occasion of the warmest admiration and much comment.

If some special insignia or other figure is desired for the raised gold work we will be glad to specially design a pen to order.

A time-saver and a keeper of clean books—
the Bookkeeper Special

The Geo. S. Parker Lucky Curve Fountain Pen

Bookkeepers' Special. No. 100. Price $6.00

There is something designed especially for bookkeepers. It is a double fountain pen, one end for black ink and the other for red. The ink reservoir for the red ink is red, which indicates at a glance the color of ink in that barrel. The other end of the fountain is black, which also indicates the color of ink therein. Every bookkeeper who has seen and tried this is simply delighted with it. The fountain can be disengaged if desired, thus making two complete fountain, in which event they could be carried in the pocket in the ordinary way.

Emblem Pens

We are prepared to supply the Parker Pen with the emblem of almost any of the more prominent orders. The emblem is on solid (not plated) gold band. Makes a fine present for some secret order man. Price $12.00 each for K. of P., K. of C., I. O. O. F., Elks, Blue Lodge, Chapter, Shrine, Knight Templar and others. Rolled gold plate 18K instead of solid gold, same design. $10.

This shows how the pen looks mounted with the Elks emblem. A very popular emblem. Price $12.00. These Emblem pens can be fitted with gold filled Lever Lock Clips for $1.00 each in addition to the price of the pen, which add very much to their beauty.

Parker Pump Filler Ink

Price only 25c. from your dealer or send us 35c and we will forward Parcel Post all charges paid

This is the bottle which fills any fountain pen ~~WITHOUT~~ UN-SCREWING the nozzle of the pen. It is the cleverest device ever invented.

Here is something for which the public have been looking a long time, i. e., a bottle of ink that will fill a fountain pen and clean it at the same time.

The ordinary self-filling fountain pens contain so little ink and are so liable to get out of order that it presents a very serious objection to their use. This bottle entirely fulfills all requirements without any objectionable features.

Cut about  $\frac{1}{2}$  actual size. In order to fill the pen all that is necessary is to draw the little cork that stops up the aperture in the soft rubber diaphragm, then insert the nozzle of the pen in this little opening, tip the bottle upside down and pump from a half dozen to ten times, according to the size of the fountain and the pen is filled. It is the greatest invention for the quick and cleanly filling of a fountain pen ever made. Keeps the ink in the bottle free from dirt, cleanses pen thoroughly every time you fill it. You can refill the bottle as often as necessary. Will last indefinitely. Price 25 cents from your dealer. If your dealer can't supply you send us 35c and we'll forward parcel post all charges prepaid.

He Liked the Pen and Our Selection

Portland, Oregon.

Mr. George S. Parker.

Arlton, N. Y.

The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.
GENTLEMAN: Have received the No. 24 Parker Jack Knife Pen which you selected for me and would say it is a dandy. Writes without a scratch and the best of it is, it's fool proof and can't possibly leak. This latest model of the Parker line beats them all and I wish to thank you for the selection you made for me. I could not have done better if I had been there to do it myself.

Yours very truly,

N. H. Atkinson.

Mr. George S. Parker.
DEAR SIR: Ten years ago I purchased one of your pens, No. 23 Hexagon. With it I wrote over 500 sermons and many hundreds of letters and used it on all kinds of paper from coarse manilla to the best there is. It never got rough on the point, never broken and never wore out. It was never repaired in any way, and I guess a barrel of ink flowed through it, but the ink always came when wanted, not too fast or too slow. On my recent vacation, I lost it. I hope a good man found it for it was like new when I lost it. If I could have kept it, it would have written another 500 batch of sermons. I want another like it if you have it.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES H. CONGROVE, JR.

Read What the Notary Public Says:

Heiberger, Ala.

Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.

DEAR SIR: I am sending you this voluntary testimonial in praise of the Parker Jack Knife fountain pen. I had the misfortune to lose my Jack Knife Safety in September, 1912. It was found on March 2nd, 1913, in an open field which is almost constantly in cultivation. All parts of it seem well preserved, and especially the point which had double protection because of the safety cap. I am writing with this same pen now.

Yours respectfully,

A. C. MOORE, Notary Public,
Perry Co., Alabama.

The Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.
GENTLEMAN: Acknowledging your letter of the 30th inst., beg to advise we are surely gratified with the business we are doing with the Parker Pens. Your case displays a very prominent position in our store and believe it is an excellent addition to our line. We have just received some attractive advertising matter from you and will make good use of this.

Assuring you of our hearty co-operation, we are,
Very truly yours,

The Wender-Bristol, Co.

A Letter of Appreciation
DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of the new Fountain and am very pleased with it. It writes lovely. I thank you very much. I will see that you do not lose anything for exchanging it. I will use it as an advertisement everywhere I go. Yours truly,
Sr. Hyacintha, Que.

SARAH HENSON.

What a Pennsylvania Merchant Says:

Coal Creek, Pa., March 3rd, 1913.

The Geo. S. Parker Pen Co.

GENTLEMEN: I have been a user of your fountain pens for 15 or 18 years. The one I am using now has been in use every hour of the day for 5 or 6 years without any repairs.

Yours very truly,

H. P. HUGGAN.

A Word of Praise from Connecticut

Winsted, Conn., Sept. 20, 1912.

Mr. Geo. S. Parker, Janesville, Wis.

MY DEAR SIR: After using many fountain pens, I purchased a No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$  Lucky Curve Parker Pen and I cannot express the pleasure I find in using it; always a free flow of ink, fine point on pen, very satisfactory in all cases.

Yours truly,

A. W. BAGLIN, 38 Wetmore Ave.

Here is What a Prominent Doctor Says:

Geo. S. Parker, Janesville, Wis.

DEAR SIR: Under separate cover, I am mailing you my Parker Fountain Pen to be repaired. I have used it steadily for twelve or more years. I bought this pen of Byron Whitfield, a local dealer and druggist of Quincy, Ill. There has never been a day for all these years in which I have not written from one hundred to five hundred words without a blot or leak. I let the pen fall a few days ago and want to get it repaired.

Yours truly,

DR. J. D. JUSTICE,
Waynoka, Oklahoma.

Here is What an Oregon State Official Says:

July 20, 1912.

Geo. S. Parker, Janesville, Wis.

GENTLEMEN: Will you kindly mail to me a new piece for the clip like the piece enclosed? Have carried this pen for four years now and the ink has never run down the outside.

W. M. PLUMPTON,
State House, Salem, Oregon.

Nothing Like the Jack Knife

Cleveland, Kansas.

Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis.

GENTLEMEN: I cannot refrain from telling you about the Parker Jack Knife Safeties which I ordered from you last September. They certainly are elegant pens, and so handy. I carry mine in my pocket with my jack knife, and it never leaks, sweats or does anything that a first class pen should not do. The other boys for whom I ordered pens are highly pleased with them and are liberal boosters for Parker Pens. Yours truly, DARWIN WELLS.

P. S. Kindly send me one of your late catalogs of Parker Pens.

What the President of a Savings Assn. Says:

Baltimore, Md.

Parker Pen Co., Geo. S. Parker, Esq., Pres.

This is to notify you that your letter of March 26th was received and today I bought a "Jack Knife Safety" No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$  with which I am writing this letter. I am very well pleased with it and will recommend it to my friends.

Yours very truly,

ALBERT BAKER, President,
1229 N. Patterson Park Ave.
P. S. Will be glad to recommend it everywhere. A. B.
